

CONTENTS

Introduction	xix
Some Suggestions on How to Use This Book: A Loose Guide for Book Writers' Circles	xxiii

PART ONE—PLAN: GETTING TO KNOW YOUR BOOK

Chapter 1	Why Are You Writing This Book?	5
	Start with a Good Map
	Question #1: Why Am I Writing This Book?
	Question #2: Why Do I Feel a Reader Will Want to Read This Book?
	Question #3: What's the Book's Larger Purpose?
	Each Author's Voice Is Valuable
	Exercise: Why Am I Writing This Book?
Chapter 2	Inner and Outer Story: Doorways into Your Book	19
	First, Build Outer Story's Structure
	Outer Story in the Different Genres
	The Undercurrent of Inner Story
	Balancing Outer Structure with Inner Discovery
	Exercise: Following the Unexpected
	Best Ratio of Outer Story to Inner Story
	Exercise: Finding the Outer and Inner Story in Published Writing
	Which Door Do You Choose?
	Exercise: Assessing Your Inner/Outer Story Strengths
Chapter 3	Developing a Writing Practice	33
	A Professional Writer's Schedule
	Finding Your Ideal Practice
	Saboteurs and Their Antidotes
	Five Fundamental Practices
	When We Sabotage Ourselves
	Exercise: Facing Common Saboteurs
	Benefits of Writing Practice
	Exercise: Starting a Regular Writing Practice
	A Word about Stumbling Blocks

Chapter 4	Listening to the Inner Critic	47
	Facing the Inner Critic
	The Inner Critic as Gatekeeper
	Exercise: A Letter to the Inner Critic
	When You Can't Write at All
	Creative Voice or Inner Critic?
Chapter 5	Content versus Product: How to Keep Them in Balance with Brainstorming Lists	57
	Starting a Brainstorming List of Topics
	Product: Fresh Writing Every Day
	Making a Brainstorming List
	Exercise: Brainstorming List
	Value of "Necessary Boredom"
	Your Internal Process Produces Pages with Meaning
Chapter 6	Filling Your Well	69
	Walking That Edge
	Letting Go of Magical Beliefs
	Cultivating Interruptions
	Five Ways to Stop All-or-Nothing Thinking
	Keeping Your Life Going—While You're Writing
	Exercise: My Life and My Writing—Minimum Requirements
Chapter 7	Finding the Best Form for Your Book	81
	Finding Your Book's Best Form
	A Brief, Subjective Overview of the Genres
	Inventing Your Book's Structure
	Exercise: Fun Forms for Your Book
	Talking with Your Book
	Exercise: Interview with Your Book
Chapter 8	Letting Your Ideal Reader Help You Stay the Course . . .	93
	Write for One Person
	True Partnership with Your Reader
	Exercise: Who Is My Ideal Reader?
	Introducing Yourself to Your Reader
	Exercise: Ideal Reader Research
Chapter 9	What Your Book Wants to Say: Writing the Premise Statement	101
	A Premise States the Inner and Outer Story
	The Premise Always Changes
	Your Book's GPS

	Fear of Definition
	Exercise: Writing Outside Your Story
	How to Use Your Premise
Chapter 10	Three-Act Structure: Creating the Map of Your Book	113
	Three Acts Force You to Organize and Choose
	Open with Energy: The Purpose of Act 1
	Exercise: Imagining Act 1
	Keep the Momentum Going: Act 2
	Exercise: Movie Research
	Act 3—Are You Ready to Finish Your Book?
	Exercise: Planning via Three Acts
Chapter 11	Storyboards: Making Sense of Your Book’s Structure . .	123
	How Storyboards Work
	Exercise: Studying Storyboards
	Using a Storyboard to Organize Your Book
	Viewing Your Scenes in a New Way
	Exercise: Step One of Your Storyboard
	Exercise: Cue Cards for Your Storyboard
	Creating the Storyboard
	Exercise: Step Three: Assembling Your Storyboard
	Fear of Storyboarding

PART TWO—WRITE: MANIFESTING YOUR BOOK’S INNER AND OUTER STORY
--

Chapter 12	Showing, not Telling: How to Use the Two Sides of Your Brain	143
	Show Demonstrates, Tell Describes
	Gateway to Emotion
	Showing and Telling—Which Is Best?
	Key Emotional Moments
	Exercise: Showing via Memory
	Listening to the Whole Self
	Which Side Do You Favor?
	Freewriting: Training to Use Our Whole Brain
	How Freewriting Transforms Your Writing
	Freewriting Also Gentles Intensity
Chapter 13	Are You a Concept, Event, or Image Writer?	163
	The Difference in Later Drafts
	Concept, Event, Image—Balancing Elements for Your Writing

	Concept Writers
	Exercise: Balancing Concept
	Event Writers
	Exercise: Balancing Event
	Image Writers
	Exercise: Balancing Image
	How Structure Balances Concept, Event, and Image
	Passion: The Real Reason You're Doing This
Chapter 14	People in Conflict: How Dilemma Drives Tension in Your Book	179
	Why Dilemma Reveals Character
	Dilemma in Three Acts
	Raising the Stakes in Your Story
	Exercise: Raising the Stakes in Your Story
	Who Is Fighting Whom for What?
	Externalize the Action
	Fear of Writing Conflict
	Exercise: Practice in Writing Conflict
Chapter 15	Who Are These People? Getting to Know Your Main Players	195
	Your Major and Minor Cast
	Exercise: Hall of Mirrors
	Writing Beyond What You "Know"
	Exercise: A Different View
	Emotional Arcs
	When Your Characters Are Your Life
	Getting Close to the Fire
	Exercise: Values and Vulnerabilities
Chapter 16	Location, Location, Location: Writing the Container of Your Story	209
	How Does Setting Deliver Emotion?
	A Basic Lesson: Creating Outer Container
	Overly Familiar Settings
	Exercise: Five Senses for Container
	Drawing the Physical Setting
	Exercise: Drawing Your Setting
	Creating Inner Container
	Exercise: Writing Emotional Container
	Cultural, Intellectual, Historical Container
	The Meaning of Your Book's Primary Location

- Chapter 17 Perils of Backstory 223
 Pros and Cons of Backstory
 Do You Know When You're Writing Backstory?
Exercise: Recognizing Backstory on Your Own
 How to Use Backstory Effectively
 For Genre Fiction—Not at the Beginning, Please!
Exercise: Choosing the Best Backstory
- Chapter 18 Putting Together Your First Draft 235
 First Drafts
 Honor the Sequence
Exercise: Assembling Your First Draft
 How Long to Let It Rest?
 The First Read-Through
Exercise: Objective Read-Through
 The Dilemma of Creative Tension
Exercise: What If?

PART THREE—DEVELOP: MAKING YOUR BOOK SHINE

- Chapter 19 Revision: Revising Content, Structure, and Language with the Questions List 253
 The Search for Emotional Truth
 Content—The First Step
 Your Questions List
Exercise: Content Inventory and Questions List
 The Extras File
 Structure—Step Two: The Arrangement of “Islands”
Exercise: Structure Read
 Language—Step Three: The Passion of Your Story
Exercise: Language Questions
Exercise: Rekindling the Romance
- Chapter 20 Finding the Right Rhythm—The Art of Pacing. 267
 Pacing as Rhythm
 Pacing the Outer Story
 From Words to Paragraphs
 Page-Turners: Your Chapter Endings
Exercise: Studying Outer-Story Pacing
 Inner-Story Pacing
Exercise: Inner-Story Pacing
 Expansion and Contraction: Working with Scene and Summary
Exercise: Expansion and Contraction

Chapter 21	Theme: The River Running through Your Book	281
	Finding Theme through Repeating Patterns
	Exercise: Looking for Thematic Patterns in Published Books
	Finding a Theme Outside the Writing
	Exercise: Searching for Thematic Patterns in Your Own Book
	Questions to Find and Enhance Theme
	Repeating Your Theme
	How the Five Senses Strengthen Theme
	Exercise: Theme via Five Senses
Chapter 22	Your Writing Voice—Keeping Creativity Alive	295
	Constellation of Images
	What the Voice Says
	Exercise: Dialogue with Your Creative Voice
	Conscious and Unconscious Controls
	Specific Ways to Develop Your Voice
	Exercise: Recurring Images and Voice
	When You Really Get Blocked
	Using Container to Bring Out Voice
	Exercise: Discovering Your Voice
Chapter 23	Feedback Follies and Fortunes—Critique and Support	309
	Even for Professional Writers, Feedback Can Be a Touchy Experience
	Levels of Feedback
	Finding the Right Feedback
	Structuring Feedback to Best Suit Your Writing
	Professional, Paid Feedback: Writing Coaches and Editors
	Assessing Your Feedback Needs
Chapter 24	Acceptance and Rejection: Preparing to Launch Your Book into the World	323
	Acceptance and Rejection—The Balance Inside
	Getting Past Discouragement
	When Your Book Is Accepted by a Publisher: That Phone Call We Wait For Do You Love Your Book Enough?
	Self-Care to Keep You Going
	Exercise: Planning Self-Care
Chapter 25	Welcome to the World of Book Publishing	335
	Getting Real about Publishing
	What's Best for Your Book?

How Do You Find an Agent?
Query Letters
The Proposal Packet
Agented Manuscripts
Changing Role of Agents in Modern Publishing
Unagented Manuscripts
Self-Publishing
The Self-Publishing Experience
Exercise: Your Publication Party
Launching Your Book
Exercise: Penning Your Future Success
Ending Notes	353

APPENDIX

A List of Writing Exercises in This Book	357
Favorite Books on Writing and Creativity	359
Bibliography	363
Index	367